Township Property Taxes

If this is a Township Subdivision budget form, the amount of property taxes shown above and on the front cover may not represent the amount the Township will receive. Statute 39-1522 outlines that one-half of all money collected from the township levy on property within the corporate limits of a city or village shall be paid to the treasurer of the city or village to be used for the maintenance and repairs of the streets.

Township should take this into consideration when determining property tax amount to be budgeted.

This calculation is only shown here as information for the Township to help determine the amount of property taxes needed to operate. IT SHOULD NOT BE USED BY THE COUNTY FOR LEVY SETTING PURPOSES.

ASKING ERIC

Lake house owners get no thanks from son's friends

R. ERIC THOMAS

Dear Eric: Perhaps my problem stems from the fact that I am a mid-'80s mom? A couple of years ago, our very responsible son asked if he could invite about 10 friends to our large lakeside cabin during our absence. There is plenty of room for all to sleep, a big kitchen and boats and a nice lake for all to enjoy. We said fine.

Married and single people came. Ages ranged from a very young baby through people in their 50s. When my husband and I returned, there was no thank-you of any sort from anyone. I was offended.

My much-admired son says that my reaction is simply because of a generational difference: No one from his generation offers thanks for that sort of thing, and no one expects it. Is he right? If so, I am once again VERY disappointed. He wants to invite some of those people again soon. I'm not enthused. Am I too self-centered? — Lake-ert for Granted

Dear Granted: Wow! I don't know who your son has been talking to or what his world looks like, but the words "thank you" have not been stricken from the English language.

Moreover, no matter what a generation is or is not doing, he's perfectly capable of expressing thanks.

The offer of the house is very generous, and one would think that not only would your son feel motivated to express his gratitude, but his other guests would, too. How hard is it to leave a card on the counter or send a gift basket after the fact.

Circle back to the conversation you had with your son. He may have thought he was educating you on his generation, but what you failed to note was that you were expressing an expectation, an unmet need. What he should have said was "I'm sorry. I didn't realize what you needed to feel appreciated. I do appreciate it. Thank you."

Dear Eric: I was married to my best friend for several years. He was truly a family man. There was nothing he wouldn't do to help his family or friends.

Unfortunately, he was killed suddenly and tragically. Now his family has nothing to do with me or my child.

I find this very hurtful because we hosted most of the holidays, birthday parties and cookouts.

I have tried reaching out numerous times. Have left messages requesting a call back. They have been ignored. I was going through cancer treatments traveling into Boston five days a week for a couple of months.

Can you advise me what I should do? Should I just give up and not try contacting them? — So Sad Sister-in-Law

Dear Sister-in-Law: I'm very sorry for the loss of your husband and for the way you're being treated. There's no excuse for it. Grief does make people do uncharacteristic things, and that can be hurtful to those who need care and compassion the most.

This is a time that family should be coming together. I can't say why they're behaving this way. Generously, I might think that their grief is too overwhelming and too complex for them to be there for you. But they need to do more than ghosting you, even if all they can do is tell you, "This is too painful right now. I need some space."

While you navigate this difficult period, on top of your cancer treatments, it's important for you to prioritize your needs and care. Some reconnecting with your husband's family may be possible in the future, but right now you should focus on and seek out those friends and other family members who are there for you unequivocally, who can anticipate what you need and who can make space for you to process your feelings. For now, put the other family to the side for the moment. They can't help you and right now they're just hurting you more.

Dear Eric: "Left Out Sister" complains that her sister didn't share the proceeds from the sale of their father's house fairly. But Left Out Sister says she went along with it when the sister "asked me if I minded" leaving two stepsiblings out of the split, contrary to their father's expressed wishes that the proceeds be split four ways.

Left Out Sister was naïve to think that the sister would be fair and honorable in dealing with her, when she had been less than fair and honorable in dealing with the stepsiblings.

This episode shows why people should meet with a professional (who is not a party at interest) to clarify estate distribution wishes. — Fair Is Fair

Dear Fair: A very good point. Estate should not be done with handshake deals and everything should be verifiable. Estate lawyers are very good at helping families make these arrangements clearly and fairly.

In 1967, the Senate confirmed the appointment of Thurgood Marshall as the first Black justice on the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 2005, a day after Hurricane Katrina hit, floods covered 80 percent of New Orleans, looting could need to spread and rescuers in helicopters and boats picked up hundreds of stranded people.

In 2021, the United States completed its withdrawal from Afghanistan, ending America's longest war with the Taliban back in power, as Air Force transport planes carried a remaining contingent of troops from Kabul airport. AquaStar USA Corp. of Seattle recalled more than 26,000 packages of refrigerated cooked tail-off shrimp sold at Walmart stores in 22 states between July 31 and Aug. 16. The company also recalled about 18,000 bags of Kroger-branded cooked, medium peeled, tail-off shrimp sold at stores in 17 states between July 24 and Aug. 11.

At the same time, H&N Group Inc., a wholesale seafood distributor in Vernon, California, recalled more than 17,000 cases of frozen shrimp sold to grocery stores on the East Coast, according to a notice from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. That recall began on Aug. 12.

The products were pulled because they may be contaminated with Cesium-137, a radioactive isotope that is a byproduct of nuclear reactions. The risk appears to be small, but the shrimp could pose a "potential health concern" for people exposed to low levels of Cesium-137 over time, FDA officials said.

The FDA issued a safety alert this month warning consumers not to eat certain frozen shrimp imported from PT. Bahari Makmur Sejati, an Indonesian company doing business as BMS Foods. Cesium-137 was detected in shipping containers from the company sent to U.S. ports and in a sample of frozen branded shrimp.
